

Plaridel

A Philippine Journal of Communication, Media, and Society
2018 • Volume 15 • Number 2

Cinema and the Archives in the Philippines

Issue Editor: Benedict Salazar Olgado

- i A Note from the Editor
Benedict Salazar Olgado

MAIN ARTICLES

- 1 Fragility, Perseverance, and Survival
in State-Run Philippine Archives
Bliss Cua Lim
- 41 From Colonial Policy to National Treasure: Tracing the Making of Audiovisual Heritage in the Philippines
Bernadette Rose Alba Patino
- 71 Artsibo at Sineng Bayan: Pagpapanatili ng
Kolektibong Alaala at Patuloy na Kolektibong
Pagsalungat sa Kasinungalingan at Panunupil
Rosemarie Roque

DOCUMENT

- 113 Envisioning a Rhizomic Audio-Visual Archiving for the Future
Nick Deocampo

REGULAR ARTICLES

- 137 Mondo Macabro as Trashy/Cult Film Archive:
The Case of Classic Indonesian Exploitation
Cinema
Ekky Imanjaya

157 A Review of Received/Dominant/Western Film Adaptation Literatures, Or The Possibilities for a (De-Westernized) Filipino Theory

Joyce L. Arriola

189 Freeing the Elephant-eating Boa: Theorizing Children in Philippine Social Science Research

Cheeno Marlo del Mundo Sayuno

REVIEWS

207 Presenting Cebuano Cinema at the MEMORY! International Film Heritage Festival

Paul Douglas Grant

215 Where have all the Videos Gone?

Ray Edmondson

219 “From my memory you will not be vanished.” Assessing the digital image in the preservation of Lav Diaz’s MiniDV work

Luke Moses

DOCUMENT

223 Gawad Plaridel 2017 Lecture

Ma. Christina Monzon Palma, Luz Rimban

The cover: A still image from National Artist Gerardo de Leon’s 1965 film, ‘Ang Daigdig ng mga Api,’ regrettably, one of Philippine cinema’s lost gems.

SARAH VILLAREAL graduated in UP Diliman with a bachelor’s degree in Fine Arts major in Visual Communications. She currently works as Creative Arts Specialist in UP Film Institute, and involves herself with projects related to promoting arts and culture as well as social causes with design agencies and non-governmental organizations. (Corresponding artist: sdvillareal@up.edu.ph)